Five countries at the top of the scale

Where conflict and state failure are disrupting people, trade and operations right now.

How to read the threat scale

- 1. Low
- 2. Guarded
- 3. Elevated
- 4. High
- 5. Severe

Each grade reflects how likely an issue is to disrupt people, assets or operations in the next three months, and how badly.

Iran

Threat level 5 of 5

Severe

At war with the US and Israel since 28 February. Hormuz is effectively closed while Qatari mediators test a deal to reopen it.

Top three issues

1 Renewed US strikes — Severe

US forces struck Qeshm Island on 2 November after Iranian fire at a US aircraft. US officials say other strikes have been carried out quietly in recent weeks.

2 Strait of Hormuz closure — Severe

Transits are down to a handful a day against about 85 before the war, as Iran shifts to mines and small-boat attacks. Tehran says it could reopen the strait within two days if Washington meets its conditions.

3 Fragile diplomacy — High

Qatari mediators in Tehran are pushing a framework where Iran stops attacking ships and the US lifts its port blockade, but officials say the two sides remain far apart.

Ukraine

Threat level 5 of 5

Severe

Entering a fifth winter of full-scale war, with the power grid under heavy attack.

Top three issues

1 Strikes on the power grid — Severe

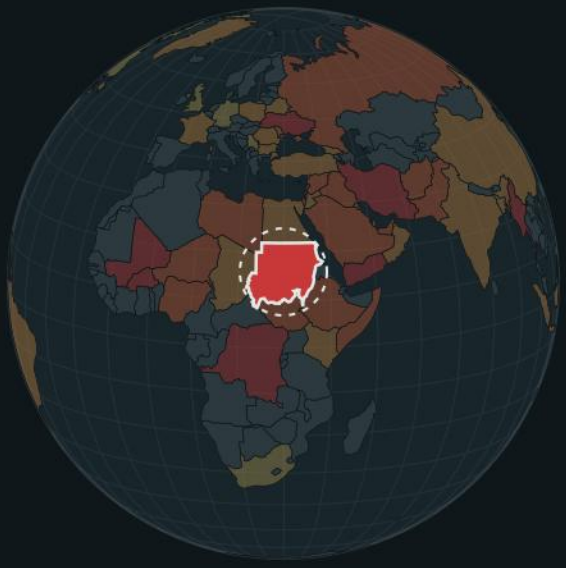

Russia is stockpiling jet-powered drones and quasi-cruise missiles for a winter campaign against energy sites. One October day saw 850 drones and 39 missiles fired.

2 Front line — High

Russian forces lost ground in October for the second month running, after Ukraine's Operation Vivaldi disrupted the push on Donetsk's fortress belt.

3 Reliability of Western support — High

Starlink speed restrictions, intelligence gaps and a US fuel deal with Moscow have strained ties with Washington.

Sudan

Threat level 5 of 5

Severe

The world's largest humanitarian crisis, driven by the war between the army and the RSF.

Top three issues

1 Army–RSF war — Severe

Fighting has shifted to Kordofan after the RSF captured El Fasher in 2025.

2 Famine — Severe

Famine conditions affect several regions, and aid access is blocked.

3 Foreign backers — High

External support to both sides prolongs the war and risks regional spillover.

Myanmar

Threat level 5 of 5
Severe

Civil war continues after a military-run election.

Top three issues

1 Civil war — Severe
Resistance forces and ethnic armed groups still contest large areas.

2 Legitimacy of military-run election — High
Polls held under the junta have not ended the conflict or won broad acceptance.

3 Scam centres and crime — High
Industrial-scale online fraud along the borders draws regional crackdowns.

Haiti

Threat level Severe 5 of 5

Gangs control most of the capital.

Top three issues

1 Gang control — Severe

Gangs hold most of Port-au-Prince and key roads.

2 International security force — High

The UN-backed Gang Suppression Force is still building up.

3 Humanitarian emergency — Severe

Over a million people are displaced, and hunger is widespread.
